VOLUNTEER OPEN DAY

On Saturday 8th January The Bureau opened its doors to welcome prospective volunteers from the community. In a drive to raise public awareness of our services and to bring in new volunteers, the team opened the office up to be on hand to answer any questions people may have and to sign people onto their individual projects.

A total of fifteen new volunteers were signed up across various projects, or expressed an interest in volunteering. This is a huge win for both the organisation and the community as it further allows us to extend out services and provide Glossop and the surrounding areas with the necessary support for its wellbeing needs.

Whilst this is a big win for us as a voluntary organisation, there is still plenty of room for more volunteers. If you or anyone you know is interested in volunteering here at The Bureau, or is perhaps interested in finding further volunteering opportunities within the community, then get in touch with our Volunteer Coordinator, Fi Nelson using the details below.

GET IN TOUCH!

Here at The Bureau, we love hearing back from our community, clients & volunteers, and getting feedback that helps us provide better services to our local area!

This month we highlight the experience of Anne, one of our Life Skills Mentors.

"I have found being involved in the Life Skills work extremely rewarding. Whilst my own client has not yet moved towards training or work, the obvious improvement in his mental health as he has been supported through the Life Skills Course has been a pleasure to watch. Personally, the work has motivated me to look for wider opportunities within volunteering at The Bureau including involvement in peer support and training of future additional mentors and the volunteer driver scheme."
